Arundhati Roy has said that her new novel, titled “The God of Small Things,” is set in the late 20th century in Kerala. It follows the lives of two cousins, Rahel and Ammu, who are connected by events that take place during the 1980s and 1990s. The novel explores themes of family, love, grief, and history, and is a powerful reminder of the impact of historical events on individual lives.
